Planting the Ivy

Of friendly halls and ivied walls
Of Kidron's grassy ways
We hold the sacred memory
And sing the ardent praise.

The evening chimes, the happy times
With well-known book and friend
Are part of all we love, a store
Of wealth that will not end.

Dear Bethel, now we give our vow
Of loyalty to thee,
Oh, spirit of the school we'll love
Until eternity.

Oh hear our prayer, be with us where,
Oh God, you'd have us go.

library a reality

Our Library—
A sanctuary peaceful
For our quiet study hours.
A storehouse of wisdom,
Where our minds are filled
With learning from the masters
Old and new.

Our Faculty—
We tell of those Whose paths
Are paths of service;
Whose duty
Is the guidance of young minds;
Whose joys
Are youthful dreams fulfilled.

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

BETHEL COLLEGE
OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA
NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS

The Graymaroon portrays college life at Bethel College for the year 1953-1954. Even so, many of the significant experiences of college life cannot be portrayed. Many of these are etched in the minds and hearts of the individual. We recognize that this past year has been made possible by the cooperation of students, faculty, and friends of Bethel College. To all we express our sincere gratitude. We trust that all the activities carried on will be a continuing blessing to the honor and glory of God.

women's association

This active organization, giving time and money to needs at Bethel, has, in the past, made possible such things as the Rueter organ, kitchen equipment, and Student Union Room supplies. At the present time they have as their project a new girls dormitory.

Our Students—
'Tis but a step,
This venture
In learning.
Yet,
'Tis a step upward,
To the highest,
The best.

student council

Here are the students who represent us on our Student Council. They are nominated by their classes and are elected by the student body. Advised by the deans they meet weekly to sponsor and plan school activities, foster school spirit, secure student-faculty co-operation, and promote democratic living.

seniors

When I was but a freshman,
And knew not much at all,
The world seemed very big to me,
But now it's very small.

I'm a Senior!

When I was but a sophomore,
The seniors seemed so wise,
Now isn't it amazing
My intelligence did rise.

I'm a Senior!

When I was but a junior,
I was always criticized
I never knew the knack of things,
But now I'm civilized.

I'm a Senior!

When I was but a freshman,
I even feared roll call.
But now just ask me anything,
Because I know it all.

I'm a Senior!

j u n i o r s

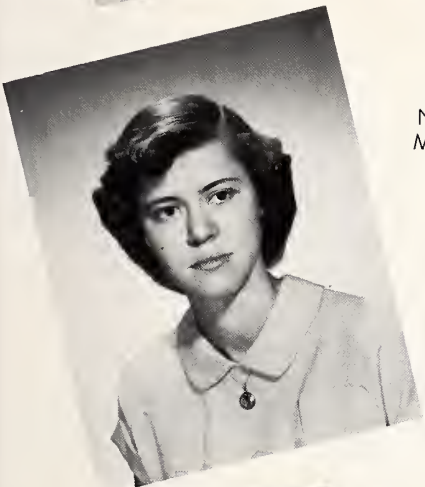

If you've learned of the mighty Juniors,
You've had the great thrill of your life.
For Juniors there's never a worry.
They welcome a challenge or strife.

With tools such as nails and a hammer,
Papyrus reed, 'hesieve, and glue,
A banquet they sparked which was nifty
Made Seniors exclaim "ah" and "ooh!"

With onion skin plus magic ointment,
A masterpiece they made—this book.
And though eons lapse, mem'ries linger
When through these pages you look.

Dull class
No good
Many kids
Saw wood.

But sophomores think!
Sophomores learn!
Information
They don't spurn.

Sophomores ask!
They surmise!
Freshmen say,
"Aren't they wise!"

Problems come;
They're unafraid;
They've studied hard,
They've got it made.

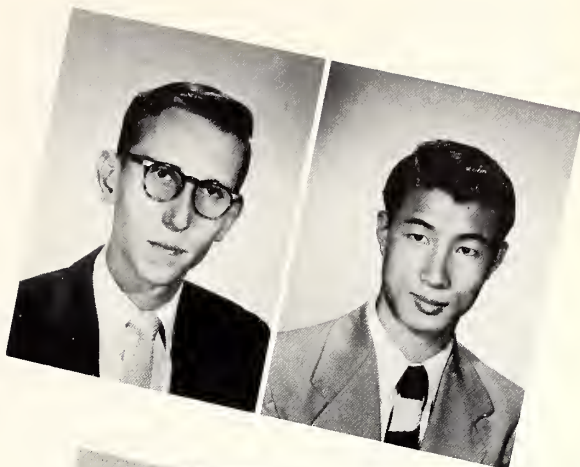

Not a thing
Do they lack
For in class
They did not sack!

FRESHMAN CLASS OFFICERS: Harlan Graber—President; Jim Goering—Vice-President; Joan Banman—Secretary-Treasurer.

Now all these upper classmen,
I think they're getting worse.
Because they think of foolish things
Like walking in reverse.

They say we're slightly colored—
Green to be exact.
Now anyone with eyes can see
That such is not the fact.

They say we just don't know the ropes.
We are so very meek.
Yet still they yell, "Here take my books,"
I know it's 'cause they're weak!

They say of that enrollment day,
You'll never see the end.
But they must lack perspective,
For we're eager to attend.

We know we'll have to hustle,
But perhaps in a year or two,
We can teach those upper classmen
To do what we can do!

Our Fine Arts—
There is a place
Called Bethel,
Where
Stage lights, blue and amber,
Intricate webs of sound,
Colors softly blended,
Words that are filled with charm,
Can give to those that seek them
A life that is full and warm.

In the dorm

'Twas the first day of college and all thru the dorm,
 Not a student was studying except the book worm.
 Clothes were piled high; books everywhere;
 The aroma of laziness soared thru the air.
 We students were nestled so snug in our beds,
 Enrollment day visions did dance thru our heads.
 The headaches, the conflicts, the red tape, the strain,
 Made some of us sigh for a homeward bound train.
 The Reception and Mixer made life look more bright,
 And things went off fine Formal Opening Night.

September passed quickly; October rolled 'round.
 We honored the day on which Bethel was "found."
 Christian Life Week held a challenge to all.
 It was also the time that our folks came to call.
 "Now work hard, and sleep sound, be sure you're well fed.
 And don't forget, son, to mop under the bed.
 In college, young man, you must act on your own,
 So remember the things that we taught you at home."
 Our Halloween Party was gay, none denied.
 We bucked the cold winds on a brisk hayrack ride.

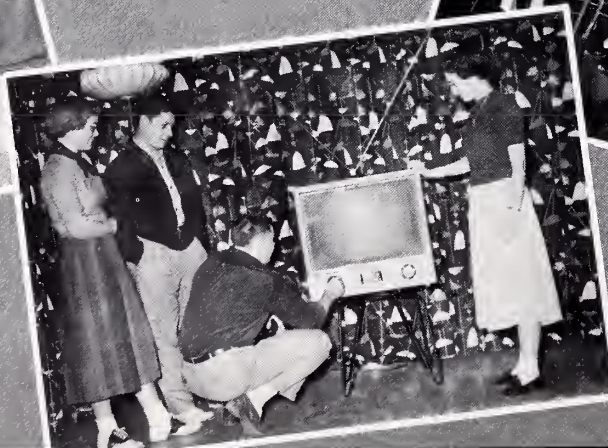

In cool, crisp November, a Senior Class Play,
 The Homecoming Banquet, a most festive day.
 But lo! In the dorms was a very strange sight.
 The candles were burning far into the night.
 No hen parties, bull sessions, nights at the inn.
 A rumor was out—"Quarter tests will begin."
 Sleepless nights later, when all work was thru,
 We had that "freak" feeling of nothing to do.
 Thanksgiving vacation, departure we took.
 Hurrah for Mom's dinner! and nary a book!

Vacation was ended; the days were too few.
 But we all hurried back to get started anew.
 During this quarter—not one will dispute—
 To keep up with our work, we were all resolute.
 Our spirits were raised by the music on hand.
 Messiah, the choir, ensemble, and band.
 Now Christmas had come, and our singing we raise
 All thru the campus our Savior to praise.
 Then phones were ringing, the ladies replied,
 "The banquet? I'd love to,"—a happy Yuletide!

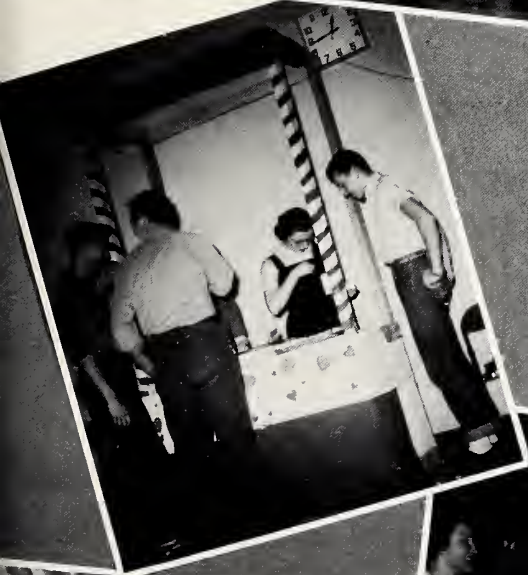

Christmas was over, and New Year's was past.
 Time had flown swiftly, and so had our cash.
 While up in our rooms, we all heard such a clatter;
 We sprang from our desks to see what was the matter.
 Away to the lounge then we flew like a flash.
 We slid down the steps and tripped over the trash.
 The students had gathered; all wanted to see.
 We knew in a moment it must be T. V.!
 Down to the lounge we so often would stomp.
 But not the sad senior who had "oral comp."
 His eyes looked so frightened; his hands, how they trembled;
 His thoughts, they were scattered; his mind unassembled.
 Though profs were all pleasant, loud chartered his teeth.
 While id'oms encircled his head like a wreath.
 Many words later, when his comps were done,
 He said, "Know how, when, why, and you'll find they're fun."

The weather was grand, just like Spring in the air,
 As we started the month number two of the year.
 Doctor Pauck's lectures, the Junior Class Play,
 The first student forum, and leap week—girls pay.
 Reports to be given, and books to be read,
 Bought bottles of ink and more boxes of lead,
 Used thick reams of paper and ribbons of type,
 Burned light thru the night, causing roommates to gripe.
 We'd studied all quarter, but how we did cram,
 While preparing ourselves for that final exam.

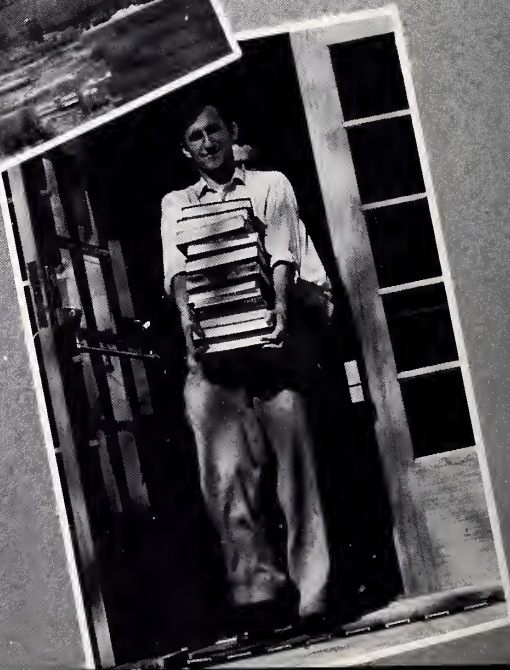

Spring quarter came, the last lap of the year.
 The busiest weeks of the season were here.
 Although we felt sure we could all use a rest,
 We were bound and determined to make this our best.
 A great night was spent, hilarious too,
 In watching the skits at the Far'city Review.
 The plays and the songs, such creative art,
 In which all the dorms played a prizeworthy part.
 The Bible Week lectures, St. Claudia Play,
 Enriched and inspired and helped point the way.

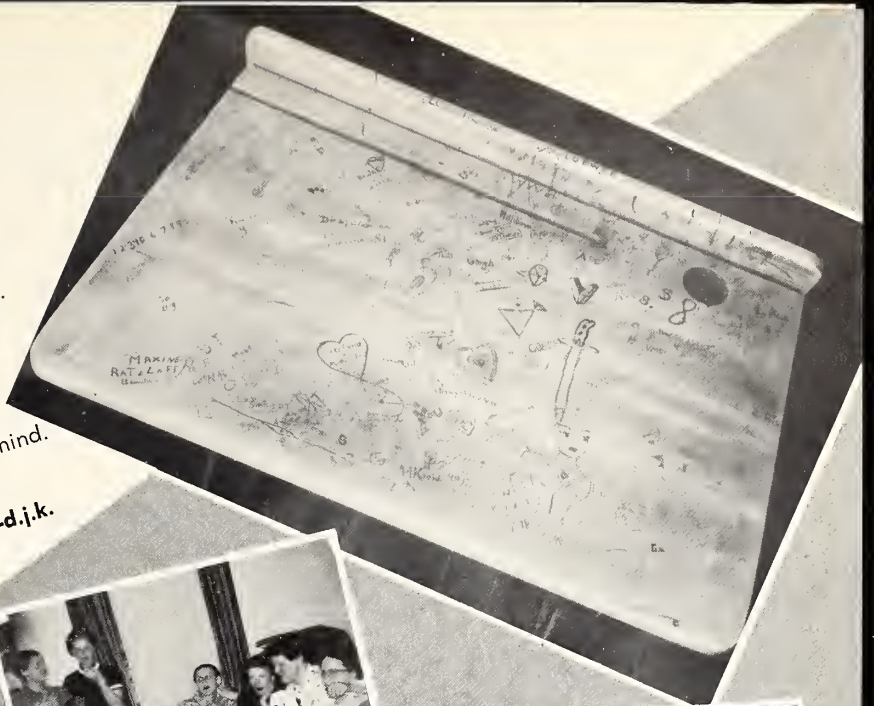

April approached and the sweet scent of Spring
 Made some of us feel like not doing a thing.
 But Senior Exams made us all realize,
 It takes loads of studying to be with the wise.
 The "Seven Last Words," the warm Eastertide,
 The seniors were planning their long gala ride.
 But what spurs the juniors to go in such haste?
 They speak in soft whispers, "There's no time to waste."
 Oh yes, 'tis the time for the "Senior Delight,"
 A heap of hard work, but a gay banquet night.

Spirits rose high in the blithe month of May.
 The rafters did shake with the Final School Play.
 When the brain quizzes were far out of sight,
 We didn't have to study far into the night.
 All papers were quite merry; not one of us grieved;
 Things were written; all work was achieved.
 It seemed long ago when we dreamed of the time,
 Of a school year completed, the end of a climb.
 Then Honors Chapel; Alumni Day past;
 Baccalaureate Chapel; Commencement at last.

'Twas the last day of college and all thru the dorm,
 Not a student was studying; not even "book worm."
 Our things were all packed, and the rooms looked quite bare,
 And our fondest farewells did drift thru the air.
 We sat by the window and thought of old times,
 The teachers, the friends, the chapel, the chimes,
 Of getting up early, before dawn of light,
 And hurrying to breakfast when it seemed yet night.
 The basketball games, the pep rallies too,
 The supper time chats all passed thru our view.
 The struggles we had meeting quarter dead-lines,
 The hours to keep, paying library fines,
 Exchange student drive, the school ties that bind,
 The long talks with friends, won't flee from our mind.
 Ideals, inspirations, the search for the true,
 These memories will linger, as golden days do.
